

Crime, Justice and the Human Condition
13–14 September 2022, Keble College, University of Oxford

PARALLEL SESSIONS: PAPERS

Stigma power and symbolic violence. The experiences of Pakistani Muslim families in the criminal justice estate.

Tahir Abass, University of Leeds

‘We have to eat the food because we have to eat, but I find myself eating it going I don’t really want to eat this, you know?’ : Exploration of space, emotions, and food in women’s prison

Maria Adams, University of Surrey

Location of betting shops and crime: A co-location perspective?

Oluwole Adeniyi and Ferhat Tura Nottingham Trent Univeristy

How sexual victimization during incarceration inhibits well-being among victims, witnesses, and society at-large

Eileen Ahlin, Penn State

Shaping probation practice of the future: why criminal justice pracademics matter

Sam Ainslie and Laura Riley, Sheffield Hallam University

Girls incarcerated: The pathways, discipline and licence of delinquent girls in juvenile institutions of the nineteenth century

Tahaney Alghrani, University of Liverpool

Credible messengers of change: A practice-lead study of storytelling with prisoners to aid development of narratives of personal growth and self-realisation

Carlotta Allum, University Arts London

Understanding the contradictive approaches on the concept of serious crime by legal system and violent subcultures (case study of armed robbery and kidnapping)

Mahbube Amini, Yazd University Iran

Ancient Iranian law’s approach to physical punishment in comparison with the Islamic jurisprudence and their impact on the rehabilitation of offender and social integrity

Mahbube Amini, Yazd University Iran

Arms laws and mental health rights: Analysing the US school shootings

Nikitha Anand, His Highness the Maharaja's Government Law College, Ernakulam

From imagination to reality: Creating an inclusive and responsive criminal justice system through the voices of the formerly incarcerated

Dwayne Antojado and Marietta Martinovic, RMIT University

Humans of San Quentin: Humanising the incarcerated through social media advocacy

Dwayne Antojado, RMIT University, Diane Kahn, University of San Francisco, and Marietta Martinovic, RMIT University

Understanding and preventing ‘cuckoo’ victimisation

Laura Bainbridge, University of Leeds

Resolving criminal cases using mediation: A far-fetched dream or a reality?

Arushi Bajpai and Akash Gupta, Jindal Global Law School

Prison cells, human dignity and postcolonial penal justice

Kevin Barker, Kingston University

Criminal justice reform and neurodiversity: From research to implementation

Jeanie Bell and colleagues, The Brain Charity

‘No future at the moment’: barriers to community resettlement for foreign national women

Sophia Benedict,

Rupture and relationality: Unearthing inmate ethical projects

Afonso Bento, University Institute Lisbon

Assessing the impact: The use of child impact assessments for children with a mother in the criminal justice system

Sarah Beresford, Prison Reform Trust

Policing and place: Trust in the police, ‘narrow’ and ‘deep’ security in an English town

Ben Bradford, UCL

Systemic exceptions and legal change: Processing migrant smuggling in the Slovenian criminal justice system

Lora Briški and Mojca M. Plesničar University of Ljubljana

Restorative justice as a unified theory of punishment

Thom Brooks, Durham University

Navigating release expectations in the dark: Gauging what prisoners know about parole board decision-making

Christopher Campbell, Portland State University

Faster, fairer, justice!

Janet Carter, HMCTS

Navigating retributivism through moral psychology: a restorative reading

Halil Cesur, University of Warwick

Police Awareness and Practice Regarding Gambling Harms

Helen Churcher, Howard League for Penal Reform

Governing victims

Pamela Cox, University of Essex

Realising the importance of effective communication in the criminal justice system: The effect of developmental language disorders on young people involved in the criminal justice system

Alison Coyne, University College Dublin

“Shame is an ocean I swim across”: An auto-ethnographic study of the harms caused to women in prison through a ‘zemiological’ lens

Danica Darley, University of Sheffield

How do cancer incidence, treatment and survival in the English prison population compare with the general population?

Elizabeth Davies, Jennie Huynh, and Margreet Lüchtenborg, Kings College London

The prevention of prison violence

Andrew Day, University of Melbourne, Jennifer Galouzis, University of Melbourne, Australia, Catia Malvaso, University of Adelaide, Armon Tamatea, Waikato University, Rhiannon Pilkington University of Adelaide

Supporting rehabilitation: creatively addressing the rehabilitative purpose of the "Sentencing Act 2020" in English prisons

Marianne Doherty, University of Leicester

Mindfulness and prison education

Marianne Doherty, Jessica Ritchie and Laura Bee, University of Leicester

Can we re-imagine prisons as places of rehabilitation, hope and restoration?

Katherine Doolin, University of Auckland and Kate Gooch, University of Bath

Exploring the impact of youth engagement in social media: Shifting the boundaries of harms and criminality in the digital world?

Lauren Doyle, University of Sunderland

Why are pregnant women in prison?

Rona Epstein, Coventry Law School

Exploring the experiences of care-experienced girls and young women with youth justice system involvement

Claire Fitzpatrick, Lancaster University, Katie Hunter Lancaster University, Julie Shaw Liverpool John Moores University, and Jo Staines, University of Bristol

Death without indignities? The challenges of medical assistance in dying in federal corrections

James Gacek, University of Regina

Shedding a light on prison lighting: Reimagining correctional officer workspace and well-being

James Gacek, University of Regina, Bastien Quirion, University of Ottawa and Rosemary Ricciardelli, Memorial University Newfoundland

The design of a rehabilitative prison environment

Jennifer Galouzis, University of Melbourne, and Andrew Day, University of Melbourne

Exploring justice, violence and voice in Scotland

Fern Gillon, University of Strathclyde

The (new) ecology of security: Tribulations of sustainable security in a small town

Evi Girling, Keele University and Ian Loader, Oxford University

Prisoner self-harm, the human condition and the pursuit of justice

Kate Gooch, Georgie Barham and Holly Dempsey, University of Bath

Continued and intensified hostility: The problematisation of immigration in the UK Government's 2021 'New plan for immigration'

Clare Griffiths, Keele University and Julie Trebilcock, Brunel University

Reimagining the education and reintegration policy in prison: A global south perspective

Sergio Grossi, University of Sao Paulo/Cambridge

How co can you go? Justice time and coproduction in criminal justice

Maggie Hall, Western Sydney University

Assessing levels of assisted desistance in prison

Mark Halsey, Flinders University, Andrew Day, University of Melbourne and Melissa De Vel-Palumbo, Flinders University

Predictive policing through risk assessment

Melissa Hamilton, University of Surrey

Exploring the lived experience of women, crime and gambling related harm

Nicola Harding, Lancaster University and Julie Trebilcock, Brunel University

Thick legitimacy?: Exploring racialised, classed, gendered and place-based experiences of policing in an east-London borough

Tim Head, University of Manchester and Emmanuel Onapa, University of Essex

Towards a participatory ethics in policing research: Lessons from an east London youth project

Tim Head, University of Manchester and Yolanda Lear, Hackney Account

Justifying joint enterprise: The problems of (un)fair labelling and (dis)proportionate punishment

Susie Hulley, University of Cambridge and Tara Young, University of Kent

Ethnicity, care and youth justice involvement: Emerging findings from an analysis of linked MoJ/DfE data

Katie Hunter, Lancaster University

Being at home in normativity

Jonathan Jacobs, John Jay College

Criminal justice system in the age of artificial intelligence: Human rights at stake?

Tulio Felipe Xavier Januario, University of Coimbra

Inadequate disclosure and an inadequate response to the backlog of criminal cases

Ed Johnston, University of Northampton

The Howard League: A history (1866-1948)

Jess Kebbell, University of Leicester

Problem gambling – a missing link in prison risk assessment

Martin Kettle, Independent

Q-methodological study, exploring students' subjective attitudes towards opportunities for ex-offenders

Scott Kidd, Independent

'No TV programme is made about boring magistrates' 'cases': Revisiting the 'ideology of the triviality' in the magistrates' courts

Amy Kirby, Birkbeck, University of London

CoSA, Covid-19 and the road towards desistance: The experience of people convicted of sexual offences on release from prison

Rosie Kitson Boyce, Nottingham Trent Univeristy

Re-imagining justice in rape trials: Irish practitioners' perspectives on reform

Susan Leahy, University of Limerick

Re-imagining the magistracy with younger magistrates: Opportunities and challenges

Xavier L'Hoiry, University of Sheffield

'Better together' – STRIVE: A joint agency response to crime in the community

Rachel Lillis (STRIVE), Probation Service

Problem gambling among criminal sanction clients

Kalle Lind, Finnish Institute for Health and Welfare

Policing in the United States: The case for reform in the post George Floyd era

Richard Wayne Lindo, North Carolina Department of Public Safety, Division of Adult Corrections/Juvenile Justice

Safeguarding the vulnerable and the dignity of risk

Ben Livings, University of South Australia

Prisoners who amplify the pains of imprisonment: An analysis of prisoner motivations for violence against one another in American prisons

Joshua Long, University of Massachusetts

Understanding gambling-motivated crime

Michelle Malkin, East Caroline University

Adverse childhood experiences and trauma among young people supervised by youth justice

Catia Malvaso, University of Adelaide

“Now it's about survival for me”: Applying the power threat , meaning framework to narratives of prison governors to understand the impact on wellbeing

Rachael Mason, University of Lincoln

Trauma-informed sentencing: Current practice and future opportunities

Katherine McLachlan, Flinders University and Andrew Day, University of Melbourne

Creating space for lived experience scholars in the academy

Tina McPhee, Flinders University

Restorative listening circles

The Mint House, Oxford, with Rosie Chadwick, Pete Wallis, Joy Bettles, Kathryn Rowsell and Myra Blyth

A justice revolution

Marianne Moore, Justice Studio

The persistence of the Victorian prison

Dominique Moran, University of Birmingham

Centring the voices of victim-survivors when designing justice responses to domestic violence and abuse

Sarah Moulds, University of South Australia

When conventional responses are not enough: Addressing the problem of child participation in drug networks

Jane Mulcahy, University of Limerick

Understanding interpersonal neurobiology, polyvagal theory and repetition compulsion for better outcomes

Jane Mulcahy, University of Limerick

Racial and ethnic disparities in sentencing: what do we know, and where should we go?

Ana Navarro Viega, University of Leeds

It's not ok to not be ok...when you're a prison governor

Helen Nichols, University of Hull and Gary Saunders, University of Lincoln

Inequality, isolation and the institutionalisation of persons with intellectual disability in Irish prisons

Blaithin O'Shea, University of Limerick

Sentencers' awareness and treatment of problematic gambling

Sarah Page, Staffordshire University

Using world cafe participatory research to inform policy and practice

Sarah Page, Staffordshire University

Reimagining court systems in the UK for gambling-related crime: The viability of problem solving courts

Sarah Page and Laura Bailey, Staffordshire University

Re-imagining re-entry after punishment: distilling the LandWorks 'x' factor following crisis(es)

Julie Parsons, University of Plymouth

It's not your fault, but it is your responsibility: What perspectives from evolutionary biology and neuroscience offer to Trauma-informed, adverse childhood experience (ACE) aware approaches

Hayley Peckham, Zebra Collective

Beyond punishment: Towards a framework of abolitionist accountability

Camila Pelsinger, University of Oxford

'Keeping the faith'. The influence of faith on achieving long-term desistance goals.

Sarah Plimley, Staffordshire University

AI in prisons: use of machine learning to diagnose mental health conditions in prisoners

Thais Portilho, University of Leicester

Community resources and rehabilitation: Engaging the wider community in the support and reintegration of people on release from prison

Laura Price, Oxfordshire Community and Voluntary Action, Angela Cristofoli, OCVA, Julian Hosking, HMPPS, Kevin Verner, HMPPS and Paul Reeve, HMP Bullingdon

Communication-accessible custody suites: An environmental audit

Keira Radice and Claire Westwood, Birmingham City University

‘Tightness’, autonomy and release: The anticipated pains of release from prison and life licencing

Ailie Rennie, University of Cambridge

When prison security ends and the over-management of prison visitors begins: Understanding variation across four prisons in Ontario

Katerina Richard, Carleton University and Phillip Goodman, University of Toronto

No place for old men?

Louise Ridley, Northumbria University

Reducing prison violence: Linking adverse childhood experiences to emotional literacy

Ann Marie Rocheleau, Stonehill College

Sexual violence – Internet crimes

Roni Rosenberg, Ono Academic College

A new rationale for the doctrine of provocation

Roni Rosenberg, Ono Academic College

Mental health the key to unlocking the cycle of crime – urgency to reverse pattern of criminality

Selina Sasse, The Phoenix Trust, Steve Grix, Novus/HMPPS, and colleagues

Reimagining justice through research and activism

Marguerite Schinkel, University of Glasgow

Reframing, reimagining and transforming education approaches in custodial and youth justice settings

Adeela Shafi, Tristan Middleton, Jordan Wintle and Dan Clark, University of Gloucester

Child criminal exploitation and the quest for victim status: Reflections and challenges

Julie Shaw, Liverpool John Moores University

Prisons, neoliberalism, stability: Resistance to reform

Andrew Shepherd, Greater Manchester Mental Health NHS Foundation Trust

Prison is as strange as war, and as hard to describe to anyone who hasn't been there

David Shipley, independent researcher

Risky business: Responding to domestic abuse within the risk paradigm

Miriam Shovel, University of Cambridge

“Surviving not living”: The lived experiences of crime and gambling

Lauren Smith, University of Lincoln

Gambling and crime: An exploration of gambling availability and culture in a UK prison.

Lauren Smith, University of Lincoln

“Just get on with it”: A qualitative exploration of the health and wellbeing of prison operational managers and governor grades

Lauren Smith and Karen Harrison, University of Lincoln

Autism training for criminal justice professionals: Current reflections and implications for practice

Lauren Smith and Lucy Bevington, University of Lincoln

Missing the signs? Challenges to and remedies for ineffective representation of neurodivergent criminal defendants

Thomas Smith, UWE

Re-imagining youth justice systems: Lessons from the Covid-19 pandemic

Hannah Smithson, Manchester Metropolitan University

Beyond framing: How respondent characteristics and experiences influence support for safe injection facilities in the United States

Kelly Socia, University of Massachusetts

Considering how context influences change in youth justice interventions: Intensive supervision and surveillance

Charlie Sutton, Loughborough University

Accelerated social ageing in penal settings

Kirsty Teague, Nottingham Trent University

Psychologists instructed to staff support within the French police: Towards a change from the inside?

Marguerite Trabut, University Paris-Saclay

Policing the covid-19 pandemic: Did the “4Es” guidance legitimise differential enforcement?

Liz Turner, University of Liverpool

From social harms to socio-technical harms: Broadening zemiologist insights with a technological focus to explore the impact of algorithmic police surveillance on criminal justice practices and social justice

Rosamunde Van Brakel and Lander Govaerts, VUB

Queer people in prison, stigma, and spoiled identities: Towards a queer penology?

Aurore Vanliefde, KU Leuven

Never waste a good (police) crisis – the Belgian version

Sarah Van Praet, Universite Libre Bruxelles

The Scandinavian prison project: Empirical observations on a changing prison climate

Britte Van Tiem, Upenn, Jordan Hyatt, Drexel University, and Synøve Nygaard Andersen, University of Oslo

Disenfranchised grief among the disenfranchised: A socioecological intersectional model of the loss, trauma and bereavement experiences of young men in prison

Nina Vaswani, University of Strathclyde

Refugees, migrants and sites of apartheid urbanism

Ayesha Wahid, University of Michigan

Reframing carceral trust: A principle, a policy, and a 'polyfilla'?

Sarah Waite, Leeds Trinity

Blue lights and black boxes: Do computational criminal justice technologies including predictive policing proffer predominantly utopian or dystopian prospects?

Phillip Wane, Nottingham Trent Univeristy

Criminal justice liaison and diversion schemes: A discursive analysis of collaborative practice in the police custody suite

Jo Wells, Bournemouth University

The court experience: A view from the dock

Sue Wheatcroft, Independent

Restorative justice ethics anew

Amanda Wilson, Warwick Law School

Drug addiction treatment and rehabilitation in Hong Kong: A comparison between a mandatory prison treatment model and a voluntary Christian rehabilitation model

T Wing Lo, City University of Hong Kong

Reflections on remorse jurisprudence in India: Studying judicial forays into an emotional space

Anandita Yadav and Satinder Kaur, Government of India and Maharashtra National Law University

Justice in the streets: Responding to public homelessness and public protest

Alison Young, University of Melbourne

PARALLEL SESSIONS: WHOLE PANELS, ROUNDTABLES AND WORKSHOPS

Parole boards and conditional release: International perspectives

Harry Annison, University of Southampton, Jasmina Arnez, Oxford University, Mojca Plesničar, University of Ljubljana, Saori Toda, University of Nottingham, Katherine McLachlan, Flinders University and Thomas Guiney, University of Nottingham

Roundtable on reforms to the parole system of England and Wales

Harry Annison, University of Southampton, Nicola Padfield, Cambridge University, Tyrone Steele, Justice, Marc Conway, Prison Reform Trust, Ryan Herbert, Simon Creighton, Bhatt Murphy, Dean Kingham, Chitra Karve, Jasmina Arnež, Oxford University, Mojca Plesničar, University of Ljubljana, Saori Toda, University of Nottingham, Katherine McLachlan, Flinders University, and Thomas Guiney, University of Nottingham

Experiences and perceptions of the police by young people from overrepresented ethnicities in the justice system

Hannah Baumer, University of Birmingham, Justin Coleman, Alliance of Sport, and colleagues

Origins and contexts of crime, justice and reform: historical perspectives on policing and imprisonment

Richard Bell, Oxford University, Jonah Miller, Kings College Cambridge, Eleanor Bland, Oxford Brookes, and Kiran Mehta, Worcester College Oxford

A roadmap to decarceration in a system defined by perverse incentives

LB Eisen, Ram Subramanian, Joanna Weiss and colleagues, Brennan Centre, New York University Law School

How can we preserve the value of human expertise and interpretation in an increasingly process-driven justice system?

Anne-Marie Elliot, Reece Thomas Watson, Ruth Morgan, UCL, and Karyn Mannix, Mannix Psychology Ltd

Doing criminological activism: Collaborative research principles in motion

Will Jackson, Will McGowan and Emma Murray, Liverpool John Moores University

Workshop: A restorative response to youth justice

Lucy Jaffe (Why Me?), Why Me?

The ministry of restorative justice – a new paradigm for justice? Restorative justice as a means of creating non-violent social relationships and community

Lucy Jaffe, Why Me?, Why Me? Ambassador, Kat Aukett, Gloucestershire Youth Offending Team, Esther Wanije, Belong, Dave Walker, CALM, and Nina Champion, Criminal Justice Alliance

Beyond covid: How prisoner insights can change the system

Mark Johnson, User Voice, Shadd Maruna, QUB, Gillian McNaul, QUB, Nina O'Neill, QUB, and User Voice colleagues

Tensions and protections: frameworks for educators within the carceral state

Ashley Lipscomb, Rutgers Graduate School of Education, Ajua Kouadis, Rutgers Graduate School of Education, Xenia Cox, Rutgers Graduate School of Education, and Chijindu Obiofuma, Law for Black Lives

Addicted to prison as punishment: Do we know how to stop?

Shona Minson, Oxford University, Erica Kane, independent researcher, Emily Farley, Centre for Social Justice, Jodie Beck, campaginer, Fergus McNeill, University of Manchester, and Fiona Deacon, Greater Manchester Probation Service

Sex workers – marginalised and abused by clients, police and justice systems

Bev Orton, University of Hull, Ryan Reed, Humberside Police, Jacqui Fairbanks, Humberside Police,, Alexander Ornella, University of Hull, and Kay Brady, University of Hull

An introduction to ReSeT (Relational Skills Training)

Charlotte Calkin, Jacob Dunne, Lucy Willmott, Jane Dring and Vicky Pails, ReSet

Three perspectives on IPP: Describing and resolving a systemic injustice

Henry Rossi, The Institute of Now, Harry Annison, University of Southampton, and Roger Grimshaw, CCJS

Prison officer voices

Natasha Porter and colleagues, Unlocked Graduates, Unlocked Graduates

Secondary victims of sexual crimes: Predictable, yet distinct trauma experiences for different groups of secondary victims

Nadia Wager, Teeside University, Rachel Armitage, University of Huddersfield, Lara Hudspith, University of Huddersfield, and Grace Carter, Coventry University

POSTERS

Correcting legal and factual flaws in the indictment: The fine line between a Kafkaesque process and a fair trial

Lora Briški, University of Ljubljana

An exploration of the experiences of children in care with child criminal exploitation (CCE).

Danica Darley, University of Sheffield

The legitimacy of irritant spray in prisons

Jeannette Hall, Royal Holloway University

Wrongly convicted- a social injustice. The impact of austerity and the Covid-19 pandemic on the integrity of the English adversarial justice systems handling of pre- and post-conviction disclosure post 2010

Jamie Heslop, University of Portsmouth

Who am I? An exploration of identity through bodymaps produced by men convicted of murder using joint enterprise

Susie Hulley, University of Cambridge and Tara Young, University of Kent

Investigating the policing practices associated with civil preventive orders and notices and the 'preventive street-level bureaucrat'

Zoe Rodgers, Sheffield Hallam University

What are the barriers to older male prisoners' good health and ageing?

Kathryn Waldegrave, Leeds Beckett University

An exploration into primary prevention measures to address the root causes for engaging in modern slavery offences

Sophie Wilkinson, University of Southampton